

Instrumentalized migration as a strategic weapon In Russia's doctrine

“The absolute weapon of modern warfare is the anthropogenic flows that change the essence of the indigenous civilization and national identity (not only instrumentalized, controlled and mass, but also uncontrolled migration)”

“Nowadays, it has become possible to artificially organize anthropogenic flows into the most powerful strategic weapon of our time”

Major General Alexander Vladimirov

Potential outcomes of its use:

- Changes the historical identity of a nation
- Breaks social cohesion and culture
- Displaces indigenous population, culture, values and way of life and gradually pushes them out of history
- Can lead to the loss of nation that has formed a state
- The state that has been influenced by these flows, loses the potential to restore the situation
